

Study Abroad Recommendations for Communication Studies Majors

Best time to study abroad:

Communication Studies majors may study abroad any semester with the exception of Spring of their Junior year and Fall of their Senior year. Students must take the first class in the senior comprehensive sequence on campus in the spring of their Junior year and the second class in the fall of their Senior year.

Students should have 12 credits of Communication Studies classes completed prior to starting the senior comprehensive class sequence.

Completing major courses abroad:

There are a number of classes in Study Abroad programs that can be substituted for major requirements. Students should meet with their advisors to discuss these courses.
