

Study Abroad Plan - Philosophy Department

The traditional Philosophy Major and the Law Ethics and Politics Concentration offer plenty of flexibility for students to study abroad. We recommend that students study abroad during their sophomore or junior year, for either a semester or an entire year. Your Philosophy advisor will help you select which classes to take before you study abroad, and after you return, to ensure you stay on track with the major.

Students who would like to take a philosophy course(s) while studying abroad are required to submit the syllabus to the chair of the philosophy department before studying abroad for approval to receive credits towards the major or minor.

Philosophy students will find courses of particular interest in the Oxford study abroad program in Oxford, England.
